Why should you have a healthcare Web site?

Our society is beginning to demand that instant information become readily available.

The Internet is one major resource tool that the general public uses to access healthcare information. In fact, a Nielson/Net Rating study estimates that sixty two percent of the American population now has access to the World Wide Web.

Did you know that the number of internet cyberpatients who are looking for healthcare information grew from 54 million users in 1998 to nearly 100 million users in the year 2000?

Most people are surfing online to find specific healthcare providers prior to scheduling a medical appointment in the real world. Will Mr. & Mrs. Painful Ache find your medical facility or health care business?
